

EMC, Radio and Safety Testing Services

9 January 2019

Dear Customer,

RN Electronics would like to provide you with reassurance about our services despite the ongoing uncertainties about Brexit. In all circumstances RN Electronics will continue to provide EMC, Radio and Safety Testing services to our customers. Test labs across the world already test to European standards and the same will apply to UK labs following Brexit. You will still be able to use our test reports to support the CE marking of your products.

We currently provide testing to US, Canadian and other worldwide standards under the Mutual Recognition Agreements (MRAs) these countries have with the EU. The UK is expected to still be covered by these MRAs during any transition period however they could be impacted in a 'no deal' scenario.

The role of Notified Bodies in the UK is likely to change following Brexit. RN Electronics is not a Notified Body so will be unaffected by this change however you should take note if you currently use a Notified Body.

RN Electronics are establishing an office in the EU. Whilst it is not considered likely that this will be necessary, our EU office will provide support to customers if required.

We welcome any questions you may have, and look forward to continuing to support your testing requirements.

Kind regards,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Paul Ray', is written in a cursive style.

Paul Ray
Managing Director
RN Electronics Ltd.